Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .THE SHAKARCHI FILE by David B. Welsh is an action-adventure novel published by Create Space. Copyright 2012. ISBN: 978-1475084856 Eleven year old Jafar Shakarchi is orphaned during the bombing of Baghdad in 1991. His Uncle Hussan finds him the next day at the home of neighbors who found him unconscious in the street and agree to care for him until other arrangements can be made. A year passes before Hussan manages to send the boy to live with an aunt and uncle in California. Jafar, still bothered by nightmares of the bombing, harbors a deep resentment and desire for revenge. The young Shakarchi comes to love this childless couple who treat him like the son they never had. He proves very bright, does well in school, and even skips a grade. He is befriended by Ghanfani who came to the States years before, owns a small bookshop, and has his own demons which he gradually shares with Jafar. He later confides that he really makes his living by forging papers for other refugees. Shakarchi majors in computer engineering at Berkeley. Near the end of his senior year he meets Nidhal Wali and falls in love. He leaves for graduate school at the University of Wisconsin. Nidhal remains in Berkeley for grad school. She meets another man leaving Jafar angry and disconsolate. During their time apart he finds an outlet for his frustration by running computer scams. He visits Fwaze, an arms dealer he heard about from Ghanfani. Upon finishing his PhD, Shakarchi takes a job with Baxter-Collins, a Texas company, which sends him to Iraq to help rebuild an oil refinery. While there he and...
